Manufacturers' Record. "A New England Yankee," who says he has resided in the south for twenty-five years, writes a letter to the Manufacturers' Record regarding protection in the south, from which we take the following extracts:

* * "A great many southern manufacturers have yet to learn that the growing free-trade tendency of New England is a selfish desize to protect her interests against the new south and her rapidly developing industries. There are today hundreds of young men throughout the south feeling and One barrel of pork weighs 200 knowing that protection is the one thing the south must cling to, and I am well enough versed in southern politics to speak advisedly and say that, although affliating and supporting the party now agitating tar'il reduction, they would not for Light moves 186,000 miles per a moment fact against what they know to be their own best interests, did they not only rely fully upon the power of a united republican party, aided by a few protectionist emocrats, to uphold the principle of protection against the assaults of the men they send to congress to combat it. * * *
